Biography

Mark F. Dahle, Jr., an attorney with Fabian VanCott, works closely with his clients to maximize their estate planning and wealth management objectives. Sometimes he jokingly tells people that he works in the death industry. More seriously, he thinks of himself as being in the “peace of mind” industry. As he works with the other attorneys at Fabian VanCott, they provide families with the tools and documents that will ensure that their clients’ assets will go to the people they want to have them. In addition, they minimize taxes and other expenses and protect those assets once they have been transferred to the hands of the next generation.

Mark believes strongly in building legacies. The legacy might support a client’s charitable goals, it might support future generations of a client’s family, and it quite often supports both. He loves seeing how happy his clients are when an estate plan has been put in place, knowing that their wishes will be carried out even after they are incapacitated or have passed away. He is convinced that everyone should have a plan, and he enjoys being part of the planning process.

Before joining the group at Fabian VanCott, Mark worked with Sloan & Sloan, a boutique estate planning firm that merged with Fabian VanCott in 2019. Mark also practiced law in Southwest Florida for over 10 years before joining Sloan & Sloan in 2017. His career has been focused on the preservation of wealth for families, including advanced estate tax planning trusts, creation of business entities, asset protection planning, and all aspects of estate and income tax planning.

Mark lives in Woods Cross with his wife and three sons. When he is not at the office, Mark enjoys spending time with his family, cooking and eating (especially southern food), reading, and writing—generally very bad—poetry. Someday he plans to write a novel.
