Biography

Artemis Vamianakis is a shareholder at Fabian VanCott practicing complex commercial litigation, administrative law and appeals in the areas of energy and natural resources, real property, and employment law. She has considerable experience representing commercial clients in complex disputes and appeals including breach of contract claims, torts, breach of commercial lease claims, mechanic's liens, warranty claims, wrongful termination, discrimination claims and several other areas. Artemis also has significant experience in civil and administrative proceedings, appeals, and special investigations involving mine safety (MSHA), occupational safety (OSHA, UOSH), and industrial and mining accidents. She also has experience drafting comments on proposed rulemaking and challenging final federal agency action such as EPA regulations promulgated under the Clean Air Act or penalties assessed by the Federal Mine Safety and Health Review Commission (FMSHRC). Artemis has successfully argued several motions, defeated claims on motions to dismiss and summary judgment, and resolved complex commercial disputes for clients through negotiation and mediation. Artemis has also been part of trial teams pursuing litigation in state and federal courts in Utah, in administrative hearings in Utah, Illinois, Kentucky, and West Virginia, and in appeals before the FMSHRC, the D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals, the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals and the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Artemis received her law degree from the University of Utah S.J. Quinney College of Law, where she graduated with honors and won numerous awards and scholarships while holding the position of Editor/Executive Director of the Extro Muros International Law Journal/Global Justice Think Tank, completing a Quinney Research Fellowship, competing in the Jessup International Moot Court Competition, and completing an externship for a Utah Supreme Court Justice Matthew Durrant. She earned a double-major, honors bachelor's degree from the University of Utah, graduating summa cum laude. Artemis is licensed to practice in Utah's state and federal courts and in the D.C., Sixth and Tenth Circuit Courts of Appeal.
